

Red Hearts Newsletter

Welcome!

I'm so glad you registered for the Red Hearts Newsletter. This is a semi-monthly newsletter.

What's in it for you?

You signed up because you love to read romances (so do I). In my newsletter, you'll be the first to get the scoop on the Women of Worthy series (and any future series I will write).

The newsletter will contain things that can't be found anywhere else on the internet like profiles and inspiration photos of the characters in the story, setting pictures I used for inspiration, scenes, or excerpts that were cut from the stories as well as cover reveals and book releases. I'll also include Author and Reader Spotlights with other books you might like.

AND...if you read my books and find any typos, click the email icon at the bottom of the page, let me know what they are, and I'll acknowledge you in my next book! How fun is that?

I hope you enjoy the journey with me as I'm sure to enjoy it with you.

Women of Worthy Series...

A series of novels about single, divorced, and widowed women living in the small town of Worthy, Ohio, located about 50 miles southeast of Columbus, Ohio. Each woman must battle life's curveballs at the expense of their families, friends, and the men who adore them to fulfill their greatest desires and destinies. Their Faith is tested in ways they hadn't imagined.

We could all use a break from the news to focus on what's important in life. And while Thanksgiving is over a week away, we can start thinking about it now. It is a time for family, friends, and great food.

Some of my fondest memories were of Thanksgiving gatherings. Below is last year's Thanksgiving post. This year's Thanksgiving will be different than any of us have ever seen in our lifetimes, I'm sad to say.

Past, Present and Future...

Thanksgiving Holidays

A writer friend of mine suggested we share memories of Christmas, but since tomorrow is Thanksgiving, I'd like to share my Thanksgiving memories with you.

As a first-generation American-Italian, we celebrated Christmas and Easter like many other Italian families. But for Thanksgiving, the day was strictly an American holiday.

We had the usual gigantic tom turkey, candied sweet potatoes, mashed potatoes, rolls, stuffing, and the dreaded jellied cranberry sauce which I couldn't stand. (I now make it from scratch with real cranberries and love it.)

My Italian grandma usually cooked the other holidays, but Thanksgiving was my mom's baby, although I think my grandmother may have made the pies because she was an expert pie maker. And, my mom did everything else. So it worked.

Author Spotlight...Laura Burton

Some people drown their sorrows or overindulge in ice cream when they've had a bad day. Emma goes wedding dress shopping.

Emma King

I know it's crazy.

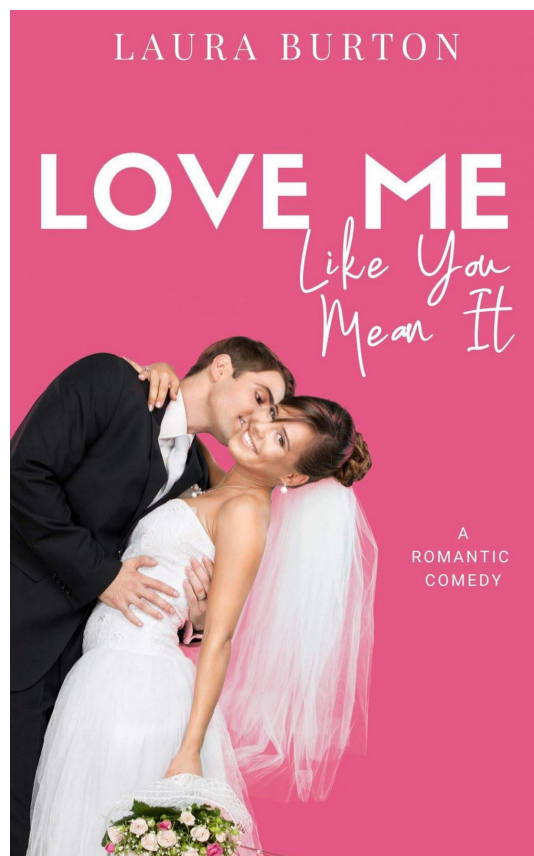

But trying on wedding dresses isn't hurting anyone. I mean, the boutique owners know what I'm doing. Besides, it's good publicity for them to have me in the middle of the outrageously expensive Bridal store, trying on gowns.

And Heaven knows I need this.

Today of all days.

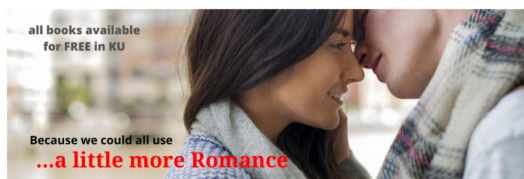

After being publicly humiliated during a board meeting I'd been preparing for my entire career.

So, I'm innocently trying on a dress. MY dress. The one I'm going to mortgage my apartment to pay for when Mr. Right finally comes along.

One of my favorite excerpts...

The context for this excerpt is that Steve Nardelli, Cassie's Secret's male lead, and his attorney and best friend, Frank Meadows, are going to lunch.

Steve and Frank exited the building and turned to walk to Café Napolitano three doors down. Steve halted causing the man behind him to plow into him. He stumbled and his face paled. The man behind him cussed and walked around him.

"What the heck?" Frank stopped and grabbed his arm.
"Are you all right?"

He clamped his mouth shut, but stared in the direction of the café. Out of the corner of his eye, he noticed Frank scanning the street, but hadn't seen Cassie.

When Frank jiggled his arm, Steve's jaw clenched. With covert eyes, he followed the man's progress toward him and when he turned the corner, Steve glared.

"What's wrong with you?" Frank's voice was low, and he looked worried.

"Let's go to lunch. We have to talk." Determined to get off the sidewalk, Steve's gut churned. Who was that guy hugging her? And why leave her and walk away?

Steve's stomach grumbled, half from the shock of seeing her in another man's arms and half from hunger. They placed their pizza orders and sipped sweetened tea.

When the server left, Frank cleared his throat. "You want to explain what happened out there?"

Frank stared at him as if he'd grown another head and Steve suspected he'd lost every one of the marbles rolling around in his brain. "I saw that guy hugging her." He groaned. This was not the way he wanted to start the conversation.

"Wait. You're telling me you stopped in the middle of the sidewalk, almost got pummeled, and acted like a zombie because of a woman?" Frank chuckled. "This should be good."

"Ridiculous." Steve muttered. She twisted him inside out. Not good.

"So, who is she?"
